

Abstract

A system for determining the nature of a subterranean reservoir whose position 5 and geometry is known from previous seismic surveys. An electromagnetic field is applied by a transmitter 18 on the seabed 14 and detected by antennae also on the seabed. The nature of the detected reflected waves is used to determine whether the reservoir contains water or hydrocarbons.